
DO AS I SAY

DO AS I SAY is a physical dance performance that makes our social behaviour visible, exploring issues of bullying and authority. The performance is interactive, and both the audience and dancers receive verbal instructions from a recorded voice – but who is actually in charge?

Through abstract choreography and concrete stories, the audience is taken on an emotional and thought-provoking journey. How does group pressure affect us? What makes someone an authority? Why do we do as we are told? And what happens if we don't, or if we say no? DO AS I SAY is a performance that evokes emotions, raises questions and invites the audience to reflect on their own behaviour and the dynamics of the groups they are part of.
